Access Control System

The Access Control system assures the security of a room/ office or building by means of limiting the access to specific people and by keeping record of such access. The system will determine if access should be granted by considering the identification information encoded on the card/finger. If access is granted, the system unlatches the door, allowing the person to enter the area. If access is denied, the door will remain latched, preventing the person from entering that area thus providing high level of security. The access control system also includes the software system that administrates to control various features of the pass-point access control system. HARATI has its own security management software that administrates to control various features of the pass point Access Control System.

Besides, HARATI has developed and implemented several customized applications for several enterprises. Also HARATI has been working as system integrator, partnering with many world class IT companies to implement products in Convergence Billing,

Use of Surveillance is a reliable and secure way of safeguarding the property and assuring the security. It helps to reduce the loss caused by theft and burglary. With the introduction of new range of IP Surveillance and IP based DVR and NVR, now user can monitor from anywhere even from their mobile, tablets or computer.

Home Automation System

● Intruder/Burglar Alarm System

Burglar Alarm is an intrusion alarm that functions when it detects the presence of intruders, fire, smoke or gas. There are several Zones/ Time that can be defined in the system and the system will turn on the alarm through its siren and will automatically call the defined number revealing the zone from where the detection has been made. While the motion detector on the device immediately emits the signal to the control panel which then turns on the alarm, rudely frightening the burglar. The gas detector starts up the mechanical valve that disrupts the gas supply and the smoke detector alerts and gives one ample time to escape from charred flames.

With the rapid development of economy and the improvement of living standard, burglar products play important role in daily life. Within a single premise, one Burglar alarm can be integrated with many detectors installed in several locations such as storehouse, equipment rooms and main entrance and passageway. The detectors of different types will help transfer electrical signals whenever there is any detection made to the wired or wireless central control panel and then it will turn on the siren or give call to the defined number programmatically.
